Industrial workers, of Budapest after police and militiamen partly dispersed a crowd by shooting in the air.

Units of core militiamen arrived in lorries and screened off the area shrouded in the thick, white river mist.

They checked identify documents and made a number of arrests.

Radio trucks loaded with Hungarian militiamen and soviet armoured troop carriers patrolled the streets from early today on the alert for fresh trouble in the capital, which has been under martial law since Tuesday night.

The streets where busier today were more traffic and pedestrians. trams were running on some routes which did not operate during the strike. but observers said it was too soon to say to what extent people were returning to work.

Dr Jagun Khosla, Indian minister to Prague, drove to Budapest from Vienna on Tuesday and is expected to have further talks with premier Kadar and members of his government, as on his previous visit earlier this month.

Dr K S Menon, Indian ambassador in Moscow is expected to join him here later this week.

unconfirmed reports circulating in diplomatic circles said Mr Anastas Mikoyan, soviet first deputy premier, is expected in Budapest tomorrow.
